This year's contest ran over two weekends from Thursday, February 13 to Monday, February 17, 2020 for Problem A, and from Thursday, March 5 to Monday, March 9, 2020 for Problems B and C. During that time, teams of three students researched, modeled, and wrote a solution to an open-ended real world modeling problem. The 2020 MCM was an online contest, where teams registered and obtained contest materials through COMAP's MCM Website.

The 2020 MCM problems represented a variety of challenging problems spanning the familiar to new. Each problem required teams to apply unique mathematical modeling skills to answer the questions posed. All three problems were created by the MCM Problem Committee, a unique blend of academicians and industry professionals with many years of mathematical modeling experience. Teams again had to be at the top of their game to excel.

The A problem asked teams to model and analyze economic ramifications of climate change induced fish migration as it affects small scale fishing operations dependent upon two commercially viable species in the coastal waters of Scotland. Intentionally limiting considerations to small fishing vessels with no onboard refrigeration capability that were participating in fresh catch markets raised the very real possibility that these companies might have to relocate their fishing base in order to continue operations. This created a situation uniquely apart from large scale commercial operations capable of pursuing the two species wherever they may go. Teams were also asked to address implications if the species relocated into new national boundary waters, an action that could have fishing companies running afoul of established political agreements. With the U.K. poised to exit the European Union at the time this problem was created, the A problem placed teams within a subset of very real implications of this move on the Scottish small scale fishing industry.

The B problem asked a common question of children of all ages: what is the best geometric shape to use as a sandcastle foundation in the face of tides and surf? Conditions restricted the problem setting to one supporting a cross-comparison of shapes, sizes, and designs based on measures of 'best' that teams developed. Water erosion dynamics inspired teams to develop models capable of integrating specific shape geometries with time-based effects in a novel and informative manner.

The C problem asked teams to identify measures and insights that would inform design, marketing, timing of participation, and other business decisions for a company planning on selling three products online. Three very large datasets containing past online purchase information involving similar products were provided to support their mathematical models. Requiring teams to use valid text-based analysis techniques was new to the MCM this year. Cleverly blending numerical and text-based measures into unified models extended the challenge in a very real way.

A selection from the Outstanding solution papers will be featured in The UMAP Journal, along with commentaries from the problem authors and judges. All 13753 of the competing teams are to be congratulated for their excellent work and enthusiasm for mathematical modeling and interdisciplinary problem solving.

To obtain additional information about the MCM and to obtain a complete listing of all team designations, please visit the MCM Website at: www.mcmcontest.com, or contact COMAP at: mcm@comap.com.

Major funding for the MCM is provided by COMAP. Additional support is provided by the Institute for Operations Research and the Management Sciences (INFORMS) and Two Sigma Investments. COMAP's Mathematical Contest in Modeling and Interdisciplinary Contest in Modeling are unique among modeling competitions in that they are the only international contests in which students work in teams to find a solution. Centering its educational philosophy on mathematical modeling, COMAP uses mathematical tools to explore real-world problems. It serves the educational community as well as the world of work by preparing students to become better informed—and prepared—citizens, consumers, and workers.
